

Summer 2009

Dear Meeting Planners and Conference Organizers,

Kevin Lewis is all about unconditional love. He is passionate about helping others move forward in life. His direct, down to earth approach to examining difficult life choices results in long lasting connections with audiences. Lewis' new book, Coming Out, The Road to Unconditional Love (TPC Publishing) sheds light on the road traveled by gays and lesbians who choose to publicly declare their sexuality and the self-realization process that takes place which holds a universal message for everyone. Lewis addresses the core issue of unconditional love by exploring "What is Truth?" and "What is Judgment?" Having heard him speak, audiences are keenly aware of Kevin Lewis as erudite, grounded and insightful. Lewis' message is this: following moment by moment consciousness of doing will lead anyone to a place of unconditional love.

Lewis, of Lewis Life Coaching (<http://www.lewislifecoaching.com>) and minister of The Peace Church (<http://www.spreadpeace.org>), was inspired to write his book for two reasons. First, as a man who knew he was gay since age 11, Lewis experienced the damaging effects of trading true self for safety and acceptance. Second, Lewis coaches hundreds of families, including families healing from the suicide of their gay child. Other families, longing to accept the differences in sexual preference choices, ask "How can we all get along?"

Lewis' goal is to move communities beyond tolerance to unconditional love: "... as you grow in the love you have for them, you will drop the word "gay" when describing them. They will be what they have always been and that is your child, your friend, your co-worker, your parent, or any other word you have to describe the relationship you have with them."

When your event needs a dynamic speaker who addresses important and socially sensitive interpersonal issues, Kevin Lewis is your keynote address, featured seminar speaker, breakout session speaker, radio/television interviewee, and/or teleconference guest.

Lewis is able to speak on a myriad of topics, especially on issues of interest to the LGBT community. We can, however, propose alternative topics to fit your organization's specific needs, such as:

- Colliding with the Self: When Values Clash
- Support for Everyone is the Process of Coming Out
- The Teachings of Religion Regarding Homosexuality
- My Child is Gay: What Parents Experience.
- Suicide Rate of "Questioning" Youth
- Society's Peer Pressure for the Gay/Lesbian Person
- Understanding the Expectations and Fears around the Gay/Lesbian Person

Let's talk about your organization's needs and budget and schedule Kevin Lewis to appear and speak in your area. Contact Jan at the Personal JAZ Speaker's Bureau to schedule speaking events, purchase books at a discount group rate, or for individual/family coaching sessions.
